Day 1 Reykjavik  Snæfellsnes Peninsula  Reykjavik

Tour Overview

On the morning of your tour, we will pick you up from your chosen bus stop or hotel in Reykjavík. We will then start our unforgettable adventure towards Snæfellsnes. [Borgarnes] On the way to Snæfellsnes Peninsula, we will pass a wonderful little town called Borgarnes. Borgarnes was one of the first places Norwegian Vikings settled when they arrived in Iceland. We might make a short stop for some snacks and continue the drive more to the north – getting extremely close to the Arctic Circle. [Ytri Tunga Beach: Seal Colony] A place where the wild seals live. Ytri-Tunga is a sandy beach that has a little secret hidden away down by the sea, behind the farmhouses... a seal colony! [Búðir] An old village located in the middle of huge lava fields – Búðir. In the old times the village used to be called Hraunhofn, which meant “The Harbor of Lava” in Icelandic. Nowadays, in the once thriving town, the only standing building is a tiny wooden black church called Búðakirkja – better known as Black Church of Búdir. [Arnarstapi: Fishing Village] Our next stop is a small fishing village at the bottom of a mountain. We will visit the coastline as we share some extremely fascinating stories about Bárður, the half-man half-troll, and his stories in the area. Afterwards we will stop at a beautiful Gatklettur, also known as “Hellnar Arch” . [Djúpalónssandur] Djúpalónssandur is a striking black sand beach on Iceland's Snæfellsnes Peninsula. Nearby Dritvík Cove offers breathtaking views and is a haven for birdwatchers. Djúpalónssandur is a place where Iceland's coastal beauty and rich history come together. [Lóndrangar Basalt Cliffs] The Lóndrangar are a pair of gigantic (75-meter high) basalt pinnacles, which are remains from a volcanic crater from ten of thousands of years ago. [Kirkjufell] We will end our day with Kirkjufell - the most famous mountain in Iceland, which was featured multiple times on Game of Thrones.

Snæfellsnes Peninsula Kirkjufell (Church Mountain)
[Snæfellsnes Peninsula]

Snæfellsnes is the long and narrow peninsula sticking out of Iceland into the North-Atlantic ocean to the west. The peninsula offers dramatic landscapes and examples of most of the natural wonders found in Iceland and is therefore often called “miniature Iceland” or “Iceland in a nutshell.”

[Kirkjufell (Church Mountain)]

The lonely Kirkjufell “church mountain” rising from the sea as a backdrop for the Kirkjufellsfoss waterfall is probably the No. 1. photographed location in Iceland.
